Nancy Staub Laughlin

Elegance of the Storm, 32” x 45” pastel on paper, mounted photographs

This is my newest endeavor... loving the flurries, but thrilled spring is coming. I am honored to be reviewed by Ann Williams in The Artworld Post. Please click HERE to read the article.
